

APPENDIX A

Please replace the Abstract with the following paragraph:

A method for retransmitting a received radio programming signal is disclosed. The method comprises the steps of: receiving the signal over a cellular transmission network at a first transceiver station configured to output the radio programming signal; and transmitting the signal from the first transceiver station to at least a second transceiver station configured to output the radio programming signal.